

I am working towards...

The 'I am working towards...' reward cards can be used to help motivate and encourage a child to complete an activity. The idea is that the child has to fill their reward card to obtain their reward. They fill their reward card by completing the set number of activities requested by the adult.

Activities can refer to any number of activities including picking up one pencil, putting in two inset puzzle pieces, writing three lines, completing 4 maths problems, etc.

Rewards refer to whatever the child likes. This can be playing with a ball, playing with a slinky, 10 minutes on the computer, reading a book, etc.

The top Velcro square is where the picture of what the child is working for is placed. The Velcro squares at the bottom are where the child places the reward card icons; each time they complete a task. When all the squares are full, the child can exchange it for the reward.

Start the child off with the one icon reward card. Let your child choose/tell you what they want to work for. Tell/show them what they need to do. When they have completed the activity, they can put the reward icon on the reward card and give it to the adult in exchange for their reward.

As the child becomes more familiar with the card, you can move on to the two icon then three icon, etc reward card.
